ENERGY...

The Fuel Of Life

This is the first in a series of articles describing the role LSU scientists are playing in the development of energy production. Subsequent articles will deal with specific approaches to energy technology and with Louisiana's energy outlook.

The great American cities. High-speed commuter trains thread through them. Jet planes soar over them. Skyscrapers tower out of them: heated, cooled, and glowing with electricity. Inside these beehives, people scramble and flit to the hum of typewriters, telephones, computers, and countless machines. On the street, buses, cars, and crowds bustle in time to jackhammers and stoplights. And across the river, huge factories churn and puff.

Flowing in the bloodstream of these cities, keeping them and all of America moving, producing, and alive is energy, the fuel of life.

Dr. Bert Wilkins, coordinator of energy programs at LSU, says energy can be defined only as "the capacity to do work." Breathing, pulsing, light, heat—any movement at all requires the expense of energy. Without it, the body dies, all motion ceases, and the city winds down to a halt.

Where do men, animals, and plants get this life-blood? All energy ultimately comes from two sources. The sun radiates vast amounts of energy earthward. Plants absorb these rays, undergo chemical changes, and convert the energy into new forms. These plants can then pass on their energy potential as food, can be burned, or can undergo further transformations and, in time, produce what are known as fossil fuels—oil, natural gas, and coal.

The sun's rays also produce energy in the form of wind and running water. Now, man is learning to directly harness these rays to heat and cool his buildings and to drive turbine engines to produce electricity.

A second ultimate source of energy has been locked in the physical world since the formation of the earth. It is man's task to unlock these "deposits," find methods of reaping their energy, and put it to use efficiently and economically. For example, the nucleus of the atom contains tremendous amounts of energy which can now be tapped for man's benefit. Other energy has been stored in vast reservoirs of hot, high-pressure water beneath the surface of the earth.

Just as energy is necessary to maintain life, so too, is the quality of life determined by the use of energy. To keep our automobiles and kitchen appliances running, for society to be more productive, for men to run instead of walk, energy must be consumed.

The United States, with only six per cent of the world's people but an exceedingly high standard of living, accounts for 35 per cent of its energy consumption. This rate of consumption, coupled with our heavily depleted known reserves of energy, is forcing man to find and utilize alternate forms of energy, and to conserve available sources.

Louisiana, for example, is second in the U.S. in oil and gas production with oil and natural gas providing for essentially all of the state's energy needs. But in another 25 years Louisiana will have depleted its oil and gas reserves. And because about half the state's revenues are derived from oil severance taxes and royalties, this means a drastic change in the state's economy.

The United States as a whole, explains Dr. Murray Hawkins, head of the LSU Department of Petroleum Engineering, will exhaust, in about 200 years, the oil and gas it took the sun and earth millions of years to produce.

Wilkins compares this situation to that of a man with a steady income who inherits a large sum of money and subsequently spends it. We have inherited vast reserves of energy which we have almost depleted. Because of the standard of living to which these reserves have accustomed us, we are finding it difficult to adjust back to living on our steady "income"—renewable energy sources.

Furthermore, the situation will be aggravated considerably if current forecasts are accurate: per capita consumption will double each decade until the U.S. will be using eight times as much energy in the year 2000 as it did in 1970.

Therefore, good energy conservation principles as well as other forms of energy must be developed and soon put to use serving the state and nation. This "phase-over" process (during which our energy-users become more efficient, convert to utilizing different forms of energy, and force the state to assume a new energy base) is being effected largely by the work of scientists at LSU.

LSU scientists and engineers are engaged in research aimed at discovering and developing these alternate energy sources and making them practicable. They are busy generating new knowledge, gathering and interpreting data and information, and disseminating their findings to decision-makers and the public so that wise decisions, based on scientific fact, can be made. They are redesigning power plants, houses, and systems of transportation. And they are training the necessary personnel to build, manage, and operate these facilities, while training others who will venture onward to new frontiers, challenges, and discoveries.

In addition to research concerned with short-term programs and solutions for immediate problems, the University watches the horizon, trying to see what problems may arise in the future and searching for enduring, long-range solutions rather than stopgap alternatives. These contributions to knowledge and understanding and the development of the appropriate technology are necessary for man to master future problems.

"It is today's basic research," says Dr. Eugene Berg, chairman of the Chemistry Department, "that we'll be depending on for survival 20 to 30 years from now."

LSU researchers are active participants in "Louisiana 2001," a project focusing on what the state is expected to be like in the period from 1990 to 2000, the problems encountered then, and the remedies necessary for us to turn the century smoothly. LSU's participation is particularly appropriate because the University is less affected by the pressures of individual sectors of society whose approach to the problems may bias their goals and decisions. It would be financially impossible to have this much expertise "on call."

The role of the University, therefore, is to provide the necessary information and make the appropriate technology available for rational decisions to be made in order to chart man's course into the future.

In the next few weeks, this series will look more specifically at what LSU scientists are doing to insure that energy—the bloodstream of our cities—will continue to flow in the 21st Century.

NEXT WEEK: Part II, "Tapping the Atom."

THE NATION'S BEST IN OFFENSE

by Anson Mount

Pittsburgh coach Johnny Majors stands alongside his potential Heisman Trophy winner, the elusive, hard-running Tony Dorsett.

To its millions of avid followers, college football is the most colorful and exciting of spectator sports—not only for the wildly improbable occurrences on the playing field and the stunning upsets that happen somewhere each Saturday, but also because of the continual arrival and departure of superstars, the players who give the game so much of its flavor and romance. Last year's heroes may be this year's alumni; many of this season's household names thrilled the hearts of only their mothers and girlfriends barely a fortnight ago.

This is especially true of the offensive side of the line of scrimmage. Rocket-armed quarterbacks, sizzling halfbacks and elusive receivers can light up the landscape with their brilliance in their freshman year, while most defensive players must toil until their junior or senior year before gaining notoriety.

It's always comforting to know, of course, that your favorite team's All-America fullback will return this fall, but it's even more exciting to learn that a possible future O.J. Simpson or Joe Namath has enrolled during the off-season and is waiting in the wings for a chance to show his stuff.

Therefore, let's take a nation-wide look not only at this season's established offensive greats, but at those youngsters whose names will be set in bold type in the country's sports pages before the season is out.

Quarterbacks and runners get the lion's share of press and public attention, of course, because they're usually the guys who gain the yardage and score the touchdowns. A great quarterback can turn a just-average team into a perennial winner, but when an already excellent team is led by a superb passer and field general, national prominence for both seems inevitable. Such is the situation at California where wonderfully talented Joe Roth has made Bear fans forget Steve Bartkowski. Roth is the prototype of a top quarterback: 6'-4", 205 lbs., a deadly accurate passer, cool, intelligent, and a quietly articulate leader.

While Roth is a classic drop-back passer, Nolan Cromwell of Kansas could well be the nation's premier option quarterback. Emerging from obscurity last season, he led the Jayhawks to a stunning upset victory over national champion Oklahoma. He should be even more impressive this season.

The Big Eight has two other quarterbacks with claims to national honors—Vince Ferragamo of Nebraska and Steve Pisarkiewicz of Missouri.

Minnesota's Tony Dungy will get a lot of national attention if the Gophers, a legitimate dark horse in the Big Ten, have a big season. Few quarterbacks have treated fans to such impromptu heroics as did Harvard's Jim Kubacki last season, rising from a substitute on the junior varsity to become the nation's fourth-ranking player in total offense. Harvard coach Joe Restic loudly insists Kubacki is the nation's best. Another Ivy League quarterback who will garner laurels this season is Pennsylvania's Bob Graustein.

There are at least two quarterbacks of the game-breaker variety who, though relatively unknown, have the talent to skyrocket to fame this fall if fortune smiles: Jack Henderson of Oregon and Ricky Wesson of SMU.

Keep an eye on Michigan State's incoming freshman quarterback Mike Marshall. One of the most intensely recruited prep players in the country last winter (250 colleges tried to get him), he could be a freshman flash of major magnitude if he gets a chance to play. The same is true of Georgia Tech freshman Mike Jolley.

This year, like last, will produce a bumper crop of runners. As always, those who have the fortune to play on highly-ranked teams will get most of the honors, while many equally good ball carriers on lesser teams will bask in obscurity. As the season opens, the best chances for national prominence belong to Ricky Bell of Southern California, Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh, Rob Lytle of Michigan, Earl Campbell of Texas, Wendell Tyler of UCLA, and Mike Voight of North Carolina. Bell and Lytle, both remarkably clean-cut, intelligent and mature young men, may face off in the Rose Bowl next January 1. Dorsett could well be remembered years from now as one of the half dozen greatest runners in the history of college football.

Other runners who have an excellent chance to win national honors this season are: Pete Johnson, a thunderous fullback in the best Ohio State tradition; Fast Freddie Williams of Arizona State (a team that could go undefeated); Jerry Eckwood of Arkansas; Kent State's Art Best (a transfer from Notre Dame); Rob Carpenter of Miami (Ohio); Walter Packer of Mississippi State; Terry Miller of Oklahoma State; Glen Capriola of Boston College; Terry Robiskie of LSU; Tony Benjamin of Duke; and Kevin McLee of Georgia.

There is one great runner that deserves special mention because he will likely be this year's prime unsung hero—a fate that often befalls superb players on teams with lean won-lost records. Last season Indiana's Courtney Snyder carried the ball an incredible 291 times, but still managed a 4.3 yard average. Defenses are always rigged to stop him because everyone in the park knows he's going to get the ball. He isn't big (197 lbs.) and he isn't the fastest, but he has an amazing ability to stay on his feet and a knack for running over tacklers nearly twice his size.

Each fall a few young running backs (freshmen, suddenly mature sophomores, or junior college transfers) leap to national attention. This year, as always, there are a score of youngsters whose advance notices suggest they may be the next O.J. Simpson or Tony Dorsett, but the best chances for sudden stardom belong to freshman halfback Curtis Dickey of Texas A&M, sophomores Ted Brown of North Carolina State and William Andrews of Auburn, and junior college transfers Gary Nair of Oregon and David (Deacon) Turner of San Diego State. The University of Florida seems to have hit the jackpot in the super-rookie sweepstakes—the Gators have a newcomer who may be the fastest football player in the nation: Willie Wilder who runs a 5.9 60-yard dash. Notre Dame also has a pair of gem-quality freshman runners—Vegas Ferguson and Ty Dickerson—though one or both of them could be assigned to the defensive backfield if help is needed there.

Receiver Larry Seivers has the hands, speed and moves to give him national honors and add to the strength of the Tennessee Vols.

Ricky Bell led the country in rushing in 1975, and will be a certain contender for the highest honors this season.

If any column space is left over after sportswriters have finished eulogizing quarterbacks and halfbacks, it usually goes to the receivers of which there are two sub-species, wide receivers and tight ends. Of the former group, Larry Seivers of Tennessee, Mike Renfro of Texas Christian, John Jefferson of Arizona State, Tony Hill of Stanford, Jim Smith of Michigan, Preston Denard of New Mexico and John Mastronardo of Villanova have already proven their excellence. If given a choice of any two of this group, most coaches would likely choose Seivers and Renfro, but for different reasons. Seivers has a seemingly magical ability to catch any pass, however erratic or off-target, thrown anywhere in his vicinity. Renfro, son of all-pro Ray, has

by Jack Hairston, Gainesville SUN

MSU's Walter Packer is already the school career rushing leader.

High scores and gobs of yardage, particularly of the ground variety, have been the pattern in the Southeastern Conference since the coming of the option offenses—the veer and the wishbone.

The biggest argument among the league's fans this fall probably concerns this question: Who is the conference's finest ball carrier?

Here are some of the nominees:

WALTER PACKER, Mississippi State, senior, 6'-0", 175 lbs., Leaksville, Miss.

A Heisman Trophy nominee, Packer rushed for 2,006 yards as a sophomore and junior. Already Mississippi State's career rushing leader, he ran 157 times for 994 yards and a 6.3 average in '74 and 180 times for 1,012 yards and a 5.6 average in '75. One of his carries was 85 yards for a touchdown against Louisiana State University. In those two seasons he rushed for over 100 yards in nine different games.

Blessed with 4.4 speed in the 40-yard dash, Packer set the Sun Bowl rushing record as a sophomore when he ripped North Carolina for 183 yards.

Coach Bob Tyler says of him: "Among Walter's many outstanding attributes and abilities, I would have to point to his tremendous speed, his poise, self control and command of all situations."

Big (215 lbs.) Terry Robiskie carried the ball 214 times for the Tigers in 1975.

JOHNNY DAVIS, Alabama, junior, 6'-1", 228 lbs., Montgomery, Ala.

Davis beat out incumbent Calvin Culliver for the Alabama fullback job last year as an 18-year-old sophomore. He netted 820 yards in 123 carries for a 6.7 average and wasn't tackled for a single loss.

One of his seven touchdowns was a 66-yard sprint against Texas Christian. On his biggest day, against the University of Washington, he rushed for 155 yards and scored three touchdowns.

KEVIN McLEE, Georgia, junior, 6'-0", 188 lbs., Uniontown, Pa.

Although he missed the last two games with a broken ankle, McLee was the SEC's Sophomore of the Year last season, rushing 166 times for 806 yards and a 4.9 average.

A 9.9 sprinter, he scored twice as many points as any other Bulldog, putting 60 points on the scoreboard via 10 touchdowns. He wrecked Clemson with four.

McLee's father played at Penn State and a brother at Michigan State, but Kevin said, "I always thought I'd like to play in the South. I like the emphasis on speed that you have down here. Most of the Big Ten schools which recruited me play a power type game, and I wanted to be with a team which didn't have the power attack."

TERRY ROBISKIE, LSU, senior, 6'-2", 215 lbs., Lucy, La.

Robiskie is a big, sub-10-flat workhorse who carried the ball 214 times last year for 764 yards, for a 3.6 average and 10 touchdowns. He also caught 13 passes.

Beginning this season he's within 766 yards of becoming LSU's leading career ground gainer, surpassing such former Bayou Bengal stars as Billy Cannon, Jim Taylor and Brad Davis.

Coach Charlie McClendon said, "This young man has that innate sense of football which makes him an extremely coachable player. Although he came from Class A high school football (the smallest group of high schools in Louisiana), Terry stepped right in and lettered as a freshman.

STANLEY MORGAN, Tennessee senior, 5'-11", 171 lbs., Easley, S.C.

Morgan averaged 9.6 yards for the Vols every time he touched the football his freshman, sophomore and junior seasons, and he touched it 377 times for 3,608 yards!

Rushing, he's scored 19 touchdowns, and he ran 128 times for 723 yards and a 5.6 average as a sophomore, 133 times for 809 yards and a 6.1 average as a junior.

He's caught six touchdown passes, and as a freshman he latched on to 22 throws for 511 yards. He's returned three punts all the way and has totaled 659 yards and a 13.4 average on 49 returns the last two seasons.

Introducing the dollar stretchers.

Your SAFECO agent is a good person to know. Because he can show you more than 136 ways to stretch your insurance dollar. Here are some examples.

1. Cut costs on disability insurance by increasing the elimination period. The longer the elimination period (time lag between the beginning of a disability and the first income payment), the lower the premiums.

2. Keep your valuables in a safe place. You may be able to lower fine arts, stamp and coin collection insurance rates if you store the items in bank vaults, home vaults or fire-proof safes.

3. Go for a bigger hunk of life. Many insurance companies offer discounts for larger policies. So avoid buying a bundle of small policies when one might do.

4. Don't make the wrong move with moving insurance. Before you buy a special, and often expensive, policy sold by moving companies, check your homeowners. You may already be covered.

5. Check your life policy before you fly. If you have adequate life insurance coverage, you won't have to buy expensive airline trip transit policies.

6. Unless you own an oil well, don't invest in endowment policies. For most people, endowment policy premiums are too high for the value received. Many would be better off with a straight life policy.

7. Be a boating expert. Some companies will give you up to a 10% discount if you complete an approved power-boat handling course.

8. Increase deductibles on your business insurance. You could save up to 18% on your building insurance premium by carrying a $1,000 deductible.

9. Keep an extra set of accounts receivable. If you keep a duplicate set at another location, you could save up to 50% on the accounts receivable premium.

10. Check into I.R.A. retirement plans. They provide a good way to buy your life insurance through tax-deductible dollars.

11. Don't get stranded by your auto insurance. Check to see if your comprehensive provides transportation expenses if your car is stolen. You may be able to save yourself some car fare.

12. Go for the big deductibles. You could save a lot on your premiums if you carry a $200 collision deductible rather than a $100 deductible—and take a $50 deductible on comprehensive. And any loss over $100 is deductible from your income tax.

13. Lock the barn door before the horse gets away. Do everything you can to avoid losses to your home. Check for hazards. Install alarms. Buy good locks, and use them. Keep fire department, police and emergency medical aid numbers handy. It's the best way in the world to fight rising insurance costs.

14. Don't look for bargains in health insurance. A cheap policy just may not be adequate. And this is one place where it's better to have too much than too little.

15. Buy insurance from an agent who's not just a company man. A local independent agent, who represents many companies and sells many different insurance plans, may be able to get you a better deal. Because independents are free to sell you what's best for you. And get you the best value to boot.

If you think these tips make sense, see the people who wrote the book. SAFECO has put together a handy, 36-page consumer guide that tells you how to get more for your insurance dollar. It contains the 15 tips you've just read. Plus 121 more. For this handy guide, write to SAFECO at SAFECO Plaza, Seattle 98185.

NATION'S BEST IN OFFENSE

been running pass patterns since he was in diapers, and his elusiveness makes him almost impossible to cover.

Wesley Walker of California should be one of the leading catchers in the country this year, at least partly because he will be catching quarterback Joe Roth's on-target passes. Both John Filliez of Marshall and Elijah Marshall of North Carolina State could win wide acclaim if dependable quarterbacks can be found to get the ball to them.

Gordon Jones appears to be this year's premier sophomore receiver, though Mike Quintela of Louisiana State, Keith Ellis of New Mexico and Artie Pulsinelli of Columbia could get a lot of attention if their teams do well. Sophomore split end Tim Smith of Nebraska has the talent to make it big if the Cornhuskers bother to throw the ball more than a few times each season.

Tight ends Don Hasselbeck of Colorado, Ken MacAfee of Notre Dame, and Ozzie Newsome of Alabama are this year's most obvious candidates for All-America honors, although either of two sophs, Ron Lee of Baylor and Gene Johnson of Michigan, could steal the laurels.

And now we come to that most neglected and undeservedly anonymous of football players, the offensive lineman. His job requires the brawn of a defensive tackle and the mental quickness of a quarterback, yet there are no statistics to record the excellence of his performance. "Blocks executed" and "passers protected" aren't included in game records. The futility of their plight has led the offensive linemen at Purdue University to form their own organization for mutual comfort and support, the Fraternal Order of Offensive Linemen. They proudly wear T-shirts emblazoned with the letters FOOL.

The offensive linemen with the best chance to escape obscurity this season are tackles Marvin Powell of Southern California, Mike Vaughan of Oklahoma, Bob Lingenfelter of Nebraska, Warren Bryant of Kentucky, Chris Ward of Ohio State, Mike Fagan of North Carolina State, Dennis Swilley of Texas A&M, Val Belcher of Houston, and Ted Albrecht of California, plus guards Joel Parrish of Georgia, Ernie Hughes of Notre Dame, David Gerasimchuk of Alabama, Leon White of Colorado, Tom Brzoza of Pittsburgh, Dave Ostrowski of Auburn, Carl Dean of New Mexico State and Vic Staffieri of Yale.

Oklahoma's Mike Vaughan is the prototype of a great offensive lineman. He stands 6'-5" and weighs 282 pounds. He's a remarkably stable, intelligent and polite young man, with the pink-cheeked and curly-haired good looks of a little boy. He also possesses an olympian appetite. On a recent afternoon we watched as he enjoyed a between-meals snack of four half-pound cheeseburgers, a half gallon of milk and two bowls of pretzels.

Southern Cal's Marvin Powell, probably the greatest offensive lineman in that school's history, is the sort of clean-cut young man fathers hope their daughters will marry. Nebraska's Bob Lingenfelter, whose 6'-7", 282 pounds are topped by a luxuriant beard, could play the role of Paul Bunyan without make-up.

Georgia coach Vince Dooley says that Joel Parrish is the most gifted offensive lineman he has ever coached, which is rather like Paul Bryant saying someone is the best quarterback he's ever had.

In an average year, there are only one or two All-America calibre centers in the country. This season there's a bumper crop; at least five centers are competing for top honors, any one of whom in some other years would be consensus All-America choices. They are: Georgia Tech's Leo Tierney, Mark Cantrell of North Carolina, Robbie Moore of Florida, Billy Bryan of Duke, and Bob Rush of Memphis State. You've probably noticed an ironic coincidence—they're all from the Southeast.

Which brings us, finally, to that pampered dilettante, the player who never works up a plebian sweat, who rarely gets his knickers soiled in crass physical contact, but who provides the winning margin in many, many games—the field goal kicker. The better ones this season are Dan Beaver of Illinois, Ohio State's Tom Skladany, Dave Jacobs of Syracuse, David Posey of Florida, Steve LaPlant of San Diego State, and Neil O'Donoghue of Auburn. O'Donoghue, a recent emigrant from the Emerald Isle, is a winsome young man who has captured the hearts of his deep south teammates. He says, "Pass the turnip greens and sow-belly, y'all" in the most charming Irish brogue.

Florida's Robbie Moore is a standout center in a league featuring many fine samples of the same.

IF YOU CAN'T COME TO HOLLAND HAVE A HEINEKEN.

The taste of Holland, pure and incomparable, comes through clearly in each and every glass of Heineken. Light or Dark—or on draft.

Incidentally, this 300-year old windmill in Holland is dedicated to Van Munching of New York, exclusive importers of Heineken Beer in the U.S.A.

Heineken tastes tremendous. No wonder it's America's #1 imported beer.

TONY GREEN, Florida, junior, 5'-8", 180 lbs., Sarasota Fla.

Tony set the Gators' one-season rushing record as a freshman, netting 856 yards on 133 carries for a 6.4 average, including one 74-yard touchdown run. Last year Jimmy DuBose, since graduated, broke Green's record, while Tony suffered through—for him—a sub-par year (103 carries for 471 yards and a 4.6 average).

Green still piled up 1,059 yards last year, figuring in his pass receptions (79 yards), kickoff returns (290 yards for a 22.3 average), his punt returns (154 yards for an 11.8 average) and one pass completion (65 yards for a touchdown).

MICHAEL SWEET, Mississippi, junior, 5'-9", 184, lbs., Vicksburg, Miss.

Sweet netted 653 rushing yards on 146 carries last year for a 4.5 average, sweeping through Southern Mississippi for 147 yards, Georgia for 112, South Carolina for 129 and Tennessee for 103. He scored on a 40-yard burst against Tennessee, and against LSU he caught five passes for 80 yards, including a 16-yard touchdown play in the final minute for a 17-13 Ole Miss victory.

As a freshman, he rushed for 210 yards and averaged 32.8 yards on eight kickoff returns for 262 yards. He's rated one of the finest open field runners in Rebel history.

While the SEC doesn't have as many great pass receivers as it does runners, the quality at the top is just as great.

LARRY SEIVERS, Tennessee, senior, 6'-4", 205 lbs., Clinton, Tenn.

Seivers was the consensus All-America split end last year, leading the SEC with 41 catches for 840 yards and an average of 20.5 yards per reception.

Coach Bill Battle said, "The consistency with which Larry does the seemingly impossible never ceases to amaze me. His success as a receiver is uncanny, and it seems his next catch is always the most sensational."

WES CHANDLER, Florida, junior, 6'-0", 184 lbs., New Smyrna Beach, Fla.

Although the Gators didn't throw often in their wishbone attack, the speedy sophomore split end was No. 2 in the SEC last year in reception yardage, grabbing 20 passes for 457 yards, a 22.9 average and five touchdowns.

Coach Doug Dickey said, "There isn't a player on our squad who works harder day-by-day in practice, or is more of a competitor, than Wes. He surely deserves all the good things that happen to him on game day. He has excellent moves, exceptional concentration and good hands. His downfield blocking is a key factor in our ability to break long runs."

MARTIN COX, Vanderbilt, junior, 6'-0", 179 lbs., Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

A 10-flat sprinter, Cox was No. 10 in the nation in kickoff returns last year, running back 19 for 462 yards and a 24.3 average, including a 65-yarder against Alabama. He moved into the starting lineup at midseason and caught six passes for 80 yards.

Coach Fred Pancoast said, "Cox is, first of all, a very gifted athlete. But, more than that, he is also a big-play athlete. He is one of the fastest players on our team. He caught a 20-yard pass from Mike Wright in our varsity-alumni spring game and turned it into a 91-yard touchdown play."

While the SEC hasn't been a "quarterback league" the last year or so, 1976 should witness a fresh crop of field generals and a few old hands certainly making the headlines. Among the latter are PHIL GARGIS, Auburn; RANDY WALLACE, Tennessee; and RAY GOFF, Georgia.

As a sophomore in '74, Gargis, 6'-0", 188 lbs., led the War Eagles to a 10-2 record, including a 27-3 Gator Bowl victory over Texas. He ran 151 times for 687 yards and a 4.5 yard average, and completed 35 of 81 passes for 518 yards (1,205 yards total offense).

After a year off as a junior, how well Gargis bounces back as a senior will probably have a lot to do with how well Auburn moves the ball in Doug Barfield's first season as head coach.

A consistent performer, Randy Wallace figures to play a prominent part in improving Tennessee's record of a year ago. He was the SEC leader in passing yards (1,318) and total yards (1,529) in 1975.

Ray Goff displayed his balanced talents last season in leading the Bulldogs to the Cotton Bowl. He rushed for a 4.3 yard average and totaled 720 yards overall.

The coaches and fans in the SEC also have great appreciation for the many fine linemen who open the holes for the running backs and who give the quarterbacks and receivers time to perform their magic.

One team is quick to point to an offensive tackle as its best offensive player: WARREN BRYANT, Kentucky, senior, 6'-5", 250 lbs., Miami, Fla.

Bryant has been a starter since early in his freshman season, and he was an All-SEC first team selection as a sophomore and a junior. Coach Fran Curci said, "Warren has been the bulwark of our offensive line for three years now. He has consistently graded highest on the team."

Several other offensive linemen to make note of, who will make their names known in the SEC this fall, are: Center RICHARD KEYS, Mississippi State, 6'-3", 240 lbs.; Guard DAVID GERASIMCHUK, Alabama, 6'-2", 260 lbs.; Guard DAVE OSTROWSKI, Auburn, 6'-2", 250 lbs.; Guard MICKEY MARVIN, Tennessee, 6'-5", 275 lbs.; Guard JOE PUPELLO, Florida, 6'-3", 245 lbs.

With the Packers and McLees running the ball behind the Bryants, and with the Seiverses catching it, the chains in the SEC will be moving plenty again this fall.

THE 2 MINUTE OFFENSE

by Mal Florence, Los Angeles TIMES

How often have you seen a football team stumble aimlessly around on offense and then suddenly come to life the final two minutes before halftime, or the end of the game?

It's a minor phenomena, but it happens.

The two-minute or fast offense is a drill designed to move the ball quickly down field for a field goal or touchdown while making judicious use of the clock.

There is, naturally, a sense of urgency in this situation, but attacking teams would be wise to remember a motto of John Wooden, the retired UCLA basketball coach: "Be quick, but don't hurry."

Quarterbacks have two game plans: one for the regular portion of the game and the other for the two-minute offense.

In the two-minute offense, the quarterback is provided with what coaches call high percentage running or passing plays.

Because the opposition sometimes figures a trailing team will resort mainly to passes in the two-minute drill, the draw play is often used as the basic running play.

As for pass plays, coaches usually depend on a quick, inside pattern or one breaking toward the sidelines. Thus, if the pass is complete, the receiver can step out of bounds to stop the clock.

Because a team is fighting the clock as much as it is a rival defense, there's one play that is a staple of the two-minute offense: deliberately throwing the ball out of bounds to stop the clock.

This is a play that is often used in

Attentive offensive players receive last-minute instructions in their frenetic race against the clock.

Vodka, gin, rum, tequila — even aquavit — never had it so good. Use 3 parts Mr and Mrs "T" Bloody Mary Mix to 1 part of any of them. Stir over ice for the perfect Bloody Mary.

Mr and Mrs 'T' Mai Tai mix

Just like you get them in The Islands. Mix 3 parts Mr and Mrs "T" Mai Tai Mix with 1 part rum in double old fashioned glass of crushed ice. Stir and garnish with pineapple stick and maraschino cherry.

Mr and Mrs 'T' Margarita mix

For that special "south of the border" taste. Mix 3 parts Mr and Mrs "T" Margarita Mix to 1 part Tequila. Mix in blender or shaker — strain into salt-rimmed glass. Float a lime slice. Olé.

Mr and Mrs 'T' Whiskey Sour mix

The versatile mix. Use whiskey, scotch, rum — whatever your choice. Mix 2 parts Mr and Mrs "T" Whiskey Sour Mix to 1 part of your favorite spirits. Shake well or stir over ice and garnish with mint, cherry or orange slice.

the two-minute offense when a team has only a few or no time outs left or there isn't much time on the game clock.

Or a quarterback will often throw the ball away on first down when he is close to a touchdown or field goal in order to give him time to regroup against a defensive alignment that has suddenly changed.

In a two-minute offense, a quarterback often resorts to audibles: changing the play at the line of scrimmage.

For instance, let's say the quarterback calls right 96 in the huddle—a sideline pass pattern to his split end. But, when he gets to the line of scrimmage, he notices that the defense has taken this play "away" from him because of the way the secondary is positioned.

So, as he calls signals, he'll say, "blue, blue." This is the pre-conceived audible that changes the play to say, 82—a crossing, pass pattern to the tight end. To the quarterback's teammates, the code word blue means that the original play is scratched and 82, as pre-designed, is the new play.

In college football, the clock stops whenever a team makes a first down and doesn't start again until the chains are moved.

Thus, in the two-minute offense, receivers are instructed to run a pass pattern deep enough to get a first down.

If it's second and seven, a receiver should go eight yards on his square out pattern—especially if the clock is winding down.

Sometimes a team accomplishes more offensively in 2 minutes than it does the rest of the game. Why?

The opposition often abandons its standard defense for a prevent defense that usually consists of five defensive backs and only two linebackers.

The prevent is just what its name implies: to prevent the long passing game.

But, a patient offensive team can often nibble away at the prevent provided that it has enough time. A draw here, a screen there and a team is moving down field in 10- to 15-yard spurts.

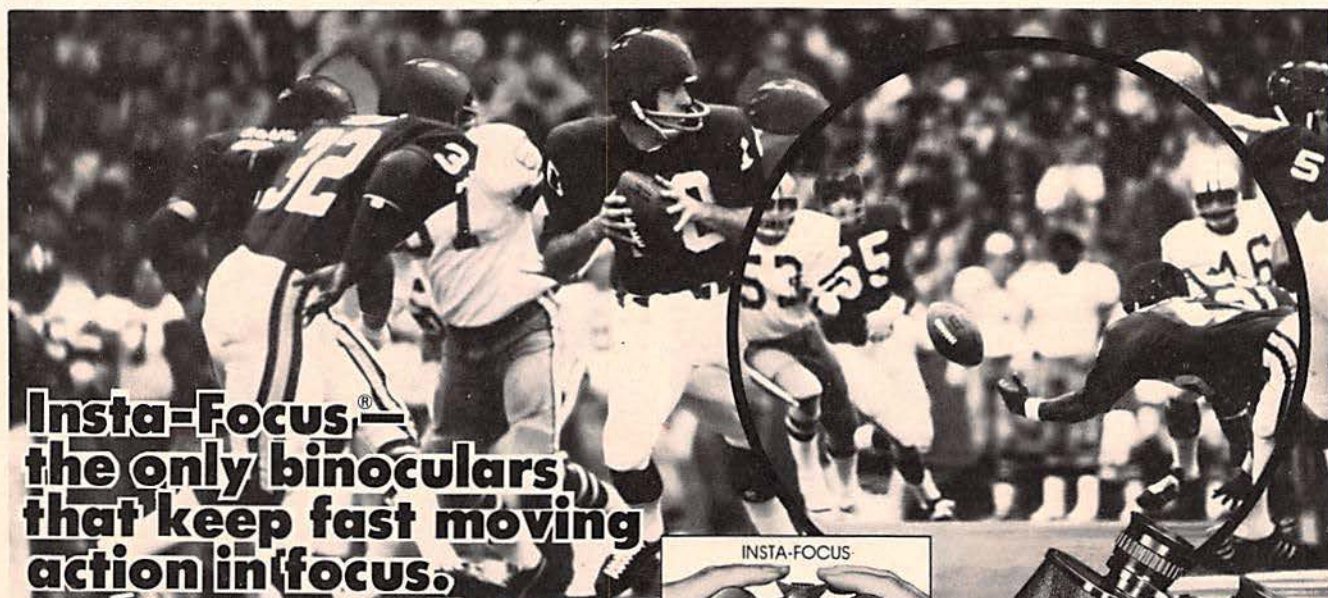

The prevent has taken away the bomb, but is steadily yielding yardage.

Because of this, coaching thinking has changed. A standard defense is now being retained against the two-minute offense instead of a gimmick defense.

Of course, field position dictates a defense. If there's less than one minute to play and the offensive team is on its own 20-yard line, the opposition would be more disposed to use the prevent because the offense doesn't have enough time to march down the field. It has to get there in a hurry with the bomb.

The two minute offense—one of the most exacting and exciting aspects of football.

It's a shame we can't see it for 60 minutes.

LSU Medical School

Unless you are among our strong contingent of Nebraska friends who are guests here in Tiger Stadium tonight from the Cornhusker State, you have a keen investment, far more important than a football game, in the Louisiana State University Medical Center.

For it is the keystone of Louisiana's extensive system of facilities dedicated to the education, preparation and training of young men and women for the future practice of the health sciences.

Regardless of where you live in Louisiana the chances are that you may owe, in part, your present status of good health, or even possibly your life itself, to the skill of one or more of the 6,500 physicians, dentists, nurses, or other health science professionals who have earned degrees from its six professional schools in the past 46 years.

Because, historically, more than seventy per cent of these graduates are now in practice, teaching or research, residing within Louisiana, forming by far the largest segment of the state's professional health-science community.

The LSU Medical Center's forty-seventh year of service to Louisiana, the South and Nation began last month with the largest student group in its history.

A combined enrollment of approximately 2,100 students will be involved in the 1976-1977 health-science education and training programs of the Medical Center, principally in New Orleans and Shreveport, but covering the complete length and width of Louisiana, said Dr. Allen A. Copping, chancellor of the Medical Center.

"Comparable enrollment of the Medical Center for the 1975-1976 academic year was 1,969," Dr. Copping pointed out, "with much of the increase due to the presence of a larger second-year class in the LSU School of Medicine in Shreveport, and growth of existing programs carried out by the five New Orleans-based professional schools."

Now in the midst of a multi-million dollar construction program in New Orleans, the Medical Center's new medical education building will be the result.

Financed jointly by state and federal funding, the $32 Million six-story steel-frame building will contain approximately 380,000 gross square feet of floor space.

Ground-breaking ceremonies were held at the construction site in March and occupancy of the structure is contemplated by late 1978, Dr. Copping pointed out.

"The facility will make possible the enlargement of the first-year class of the LSU School of Medicine in New Orleans from its present level of 175 to 200 or more," the chancellor explained.

A full and part-time faculty of nearly 1,500 is involved in the teaching, research and service programs, in New Orleans, Shreveport, and other cities of Louisiana in which hospitals and other institutions affiliated with the LSU Medical Center's professional schools are located.

The complete breakdown of enrollment of the Medical Center by professional schools is as follows:

LSU School of Allied Health Professions, New Orleans, including students in audiology and speech pathology, cyto-technology, medical technology, occupational therapy and physical therapy, 221.

LSU School of Dentistry, New Orleans, including dental students, as well as students in the programs of dental hygiene, dental assisting and laboratory technology, 493.

LSU School of Graduate Studies, New Orleans, including students seeking master of science or doctor of philosophy degrees in the basic medical sciences, 100.

LSU School of Medicine in New Orleans, 627.

LSU School of Medicine in Shreveport, 277.

LSU School of Nursing, New Orleans, 374.

Now past its pile-driving stage, the new medical education structure will create badly-needed teaching and research space for the Medical Center's basic science departments.

The building will occupy the major portion of a square of ground bounded by Perdido, South Roman, Gravier and Bolivar streets, will front along Perdido, and will be connected to the existing Medical Center Residence Hall via a covered passageway, allowing unrestricted flow of pedestrian traffic between the two structures at the second-floor level.

The new structure, served by six passenger elevators, will contain classrooms, laboratories and other supporting facilities which will be utilized in the teaching of students seeking the doctor of medicine degree, Dr. Copping continued.

It will rise approximately 120 feet and will be square-shaped, with a length and width of 240 feet respectively.

The entire structure will be air-conditioned, and will also contain the latest advances in self-instructional teaching aids, including closed-circuit color television origination and reception capability, Dr. Copping stressed.

A cafeteria seating 300 persons, and two lecture rooms with a capacity of 240 students each, are also included in plans.

Parking space for 113 automobiles is being provided through reservation of a portion of the square, at the rear of the new structure, facing Gravier Street. This parking area will be possibly utilized at a later date for additions to the new structure, or for construction of another building by the University, Dr. Copping explained.

"Change and vibrant growth in knowledge, facilities and needs, are the themes which will set the pace of life in Louisiana in the final quarter of this century," Chancellor Copping concluded, "and this new structure is a portion of the LSU Medical Center's effort, in concert with other segments of the LSU System, to anticipate, meet and fulfill the needs of Louisianians in the years ahead.

'76 TIGER BASKETBALL

Opening with a Friday night exhibition game for charity against the AAU National Champion Athletes in Action on November 19th, LSU's Tigers will face a 17-game home slate in the Assembly Center across the street and close the home schedule three months later with the Vanderbilt Commodores on Monday, February 21.

Sandwiched between those opponents will be: non-league foes Tulane, Southern California, Samford, Niagara and Oklahoma City; the other eight Southeastern Conference opponents; and the trio of Montana State, Villanova and Hofstra in the Second Annual Louisiana Classic.

Dale Brown's Bengals will play seven Monday dates, five Saturday games, three Friday contests, one Tuesday tilt and one Wednesday affair on campus. Games are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. with a few exceptions—a 3 p.m. SEC TV Game-of-the-Week with Auburn on January 29 and the four Louisiana Classic games on December 27 and 28 which begin at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m.

The Tigers offer six new faces since last year's campaign and a new graduate assistant coach—Ron Abernathy. Brown and his assistants Art Tolis, Bob Stinnett and Abernathy welcome back nine lettermen from the 1975-76 team.

Tickets are now available as the season is not far off!

Have you ever considered how "Army officer" would look on your job application?

Many employers can give you the answer: Because to fill responsible jobs, they often look for college graduates who have held responsible jobs.

So it's no wonder that many employers, looking for demonstrated leadership, rate "Army officer" above most other qualifications. Or why career-minded college students so often take Army ROTC.

As an Army officer, you have to manage men, materials and money. Your first year out of college, you shoulder greater responsibilities, at an earlier age, than most other graduates.

In addition to what Army ROTC can mean to you after college, there are many important benefits while you're in college. Scholarship opportunities. Practical leadership and management experience. And a monthly subsistence allowance of $100 a month for up to 20 months during your last two years of college.

Throughout the fall of 1975, as one set of heavy statistics heaped upon another, the sportswriters began guessing about the following year's draft. How fortunate for the expansion teams, Tampa Bay and Seattle, to have their choice of the dashing runners and the dart throwers. Surely one of the big backs or even a quarterback would be first-picked to help frame an awesome attack for the future.

Surprise for the press boxers. No surprise for the scouts. Two defensive giants, Leroy Selmon of Oklahoma and Steve Niehaus of Notre Dame, were the 1-2 selections. Ron Wolf, longtime scout and now operations director at Tampa, explained why his team passed up a running back or a quarterback.

"The foundation for building a team of quality must start with defense. In today's highly specialized game, it starts with the front four, then the linebackers, then the defensive backs. The old clichés are still good—you know, you can't score unless you get the ball, you must hold 'em to beat 'em, before you can win you have to keep from losing, the best offense is a good defense, if you keep them on THEIR half of the field, your offense will be there faster. Want more?"

In the jargon of the scouts Wolf added, "We can't make a living by drafting running backs. They don't last as long."

College football, like the pro brand, demands controlled aggression. Interior linemen get hurt, too, but they are not as vulnerable as the man with the ball, especially when that man is on a tear upfield. Coaches gulp with fear when watching their speedsters challenge a moving wall; they close their eyes and pray when that wall includes a 6 foot 7½ inch and 275 pound Selmon or a trimmer 6'5" and 268 pound Niehaus.

Of course, there are other factors especially in college. Though defenses are becoming more sophisticated, the offense is still harder to teach and learn. Offensive players must drill more closely. There is a lot of togetherness in the get-off after the snap. Defense allows more individuality, over 11 positions, because each defensive player must react in his own way to THEIR snap.

Terminology in football sometimes creates amusing oddities. (We're not talking about tight ends. Jokes about that position were milked dead years ago.) Coaches now refer to "skill positions"—quarterback, wide receiver, running back—which would imply that some others, including all defensive players, are without feet, hands or head. It's amusing because the first thing a college coach thinks of is how to change a highly gifted offensive athlete to the defense. Considering weight for size, linebackers and members of the outer secondary as a group must be more versatile and adaptive than the so-called skilled position players on the offense.

No wonder the crowd demands DEE-FENSE! DEE-FENSE! (a modern version of "Hold That Line!"). Touchdowns rate the headlines, but tackles win the game. So, let us consider the consensus defensive All-America for 1976:

Big linemen abound this year. At least a dozen are the prototypes to make coaches drool.

Mike Fultz of Nebraska, 6'5" and 275 lbs., could be the strongest man in football. As a high schooler, he played fullback, but the little boy was only 240 pounds then. He was also Nebraska state champ in the shotput. A. J. Duhe of Louisiana State, 6'3" and 245 lbs., is another watch for. Look to his height and weight. He's only 20 and still growing. And don't mistake his baby face for gentility; he is a ferocious inside tackle. Dennis Boyd of Oregon State, 6'6" and 241 lbs., has the Marine squad leader attitude—all out, all the time. A certainty for the top five in the country is Notre Dame's Russ Bowner, another great in a long line of fine Irish defensemen.

Gary Jeter of USC, a star for two years, may emerge as one of the best seniors. He is one example that Coach McKay didn't leave the cupboard bare. At 6'4" and 236 lbs., Gary has played inside at USC, but later he may be better suited to defensive end with his 4.75 speed for 40 yards. At USC Jeter helped force the ball carriers toward others. This year he may be allowed to pick and choose the ball packers he wants to squeeze.

Those five may well be All-America, yet they could drop back to mere honorable mention against the charge of such as Wilson Faumuina, San Jose State, 6'5" and 265 lbs., (he was formerly 290); Wilson Whitley, Houston, 6'2" and 275 lbs., an all-around prober who is track coordinated; Phil Dokes, Oklahoma State, 6'5" and 275 lbs., in the mold of this school's fine defensive linemen and a young fellow just realizing he is made of super stuff; Mike Butler, Kansas, 6'5" and 250 lbs., a reckless, aggressive guy who was "discovered" last year by attentive pro scouts at bowl time though he had playing time from freshman to senior, or Joe Campbell, Maryland, 6'6", 225 lbs., a virtual giant in the East.

Miami's coach, Carl Selmer, states positively that 6'5", 250 lb. Eddie Edwards is the best defensive player to wear a Hurricane uniform since Ted Hendricks, and that's quite a reference.

The Bear says nobody should overlook a tremendous Alabama standout certain to make the news, tackle Bob Baumhower.

Then there's Eary Jones from down Memphis way. At 6'5" and 265 lbs., this youngster has already made his mark on opposing quarterbacks that have tested the Memphis State defense.

To repeat, the linemen make up the best defensive players in college this year. So it is possible Charley Johnson, Colorado, 6'2" and 265; Walter Chapman, North Texas State, 5'10" and 245 lbs.; Nick Buonamici, Ohio State, 6'1" and 247 lbs.; Dave Lindstrom, Boston U, 6'6" and 237 lbs.; or Duncan McColl, Stanford, 6'4" and 235 lbs., may be the "Alls" of 1976 instead of those previously mentioned. McColl, in particular, is a comer. One scout noted, "McColl's father was an All-America and his sister is a pom-pom girl. You watch McColl and I'll watch his sister."

This year, it is said, college linebackers and the outer secondary are not in a class with linemen. But that could be a deception. Football is a team game and most knowledgeable critics deplore the notion that an All-America player got to that exalted station all by himself. No passer ever made it big without a superior catcher, and no ballparker gained 1000 yards a season without strong blocking. So it may be with many linebackers; they could become the stars back of other stars up front, or vice versa.

Receiving much praise is a player from the Citadel who may be the nation's best linebacker in 1976. His size may limit his value in the draft, but he can hit as hard as anybody and collegiately he will be a star. Presenting . . . Brian Ruff.

At Penn State Joe Paterno points proudly to two linebackers in the Nittany Lion mold who just may be the best two in the East. They are Kurt Alderman and Ron Hosteller.

Some scouts won't even nominate a sure-fire linebacker. They talk of shifting Bob Bruzinski, Ohio State end; Harvey Hull, the Mississippi State nose guard, and Lester Hayes, the Texas A & M strong safety. All have the solid frame and the 4.7 speed, plus the inclination to hug anybody carrying a football. One outstanding outside linebacker is David Lewis of USC, who has the dimensions at 6'4" and 227 lbs., and is a former basketball ace with quick lateral movement and loves a collision. He was not consistent in 1975, but if he realizes how good he really is, prepare to retreat.

Try some cornerbacks. Gary Green of Baylor, a starter since freshman year and the best athlete on his squad, is very sound after recovering quickly from a sophomore knee injury; Raymond Clayborn of Texas is the game breaker type and could play wide receiver, but is more valuable to his team in the corner; Ralph Stringer, North Carolina State, had some All-America recognition as a junior, was a starter for four seasons, could play any of five positions and is a beautiful runner; Sidney Brown, Oklahoma, is a tough guy whose jaw was broken in the first game of 1974, had it wired and though able to eat only through a straw, still led the secondary in interceptions and tackles, and Oscar Williams, Oregon State all-arounder with great speed, is the best on the Pacific Coast, although challenged for that honor by safeties Oscar Edwards, the "Doctor Death" of UCLA and Mark Patterson, Washington State.

The Citadel's Brian Ruff is a linebacker sure to make the headlines.

An assistant football coach at a Southeastern Conference school was once upon a time asked to describe a certain player, and after pausing for a moment, he spit in the dust at the side of a practice field and said in a syrupy South Alabama brogue, "He is an outstanding citizen. You can count on him to go to the polls on election day and cast a vote."

But in the distinctive parlance of SEC football, those who come from those sleepy South Georgia towns, black-with-coal-dust Kentucky villages and flat stretches in Florida know "election day" is on a Saturday afternoon in autumn and that "cast a vote" means to hit an opponent with so much savvy a loose football—or tooth—will be in the offing.

"Yeah, football is tougher nowadays," says Alabama's legendary Paul "Bear" Bryant. "It has become more specialized."

And Bryant, whose defense allowed only an average of six points per game last year, will readily admit it is those "outstanding citizens" who make defenses work.

Here is a look at the top defensive "citizens" by teams:

ALABAMA

He was in Nashville waiting to sign a football grant-in-aid with the Commodores when the telephone call finally came. Only Vandy and Florence, a small school in North Alabama, had been interested and now he was being called to come back to Tuscaloosa, his home and that of a team called the Crimson Tide.

"I politely excused myself and caught the first plane," huge Bob Baumhower explained later. Now a pre-season All-America, the 6'-5", 251-pound Baumhower will have more on his mind than a telephone call when he and two other veterans try to anchor a graduation-riddled defense for the devastating Alabama.

"All three are winners," Bryant will tell you, but unless Baumhower, defensive tackle Charlie Hannah and noseguard Gus White can get some help, times could soon be tough.

AUBURN

The defense is the No. 1 priority for new coach Doug Barfield, but getting his best out of the hospital might be a stiffer challenge.

Defensive end Jeff McCollum, defensive back Lance Hill, and freshman linebacker Mike McQuaig are said to be the most able on "the Plains," but ironically all were injured and "out" this spring.

Alabama's Bob Baumhower was a pre-season All-America pick.

McCollum, a 6'-1", 204-pound lineman from Florence, is the 'big play' man, but keep McQuaig, who broke into the line-up with a flourish until the fourth quarter against Florida last year when a knee gave way, in mind.

John Smith, a 241-pounder, has been moved to middle guard from tackle as Auburn tries on the 5-2 defense for size and could be a comer.

FLORIDA

The Gators could well have the best returning defensive crew in the league this year and, with a pair of ball-hawking bandits in the secondary, things will work out if Doug Dickey can replace his five missing starters.

Cornerback Alvin Cowans and his sidekick, Henry Davis, both snared five interceptions each last year for Florida, yet the true strength of the club could be up front.

Darrell Carpenter is a three-year letterman at tackle and his 6'-3", 251-pound frame makes him a true pro prospect. Scott Hutchison, 6'-4", 243, has been moved to middle linebacker along with proven tight end Jimmy Stephens.

While Carpenter is the most prolific tackler coming back, keep an eye on linebacker Charlie Williams and defensive end Mark Maynor.

THE SEC DEFENSIVELY IN 1976

by Roy Exum, Chattanooga NEWS FREE PRESS

A.J. Duhe of LSU just may be the quickest down lineman in college football.

GEORGIA

Most were ready to write-off Georgia and its "Junkyard Dogs" last year, but defensive coordinator Erk Russell slapped some pride into his unit and, until the final moments of the first half in last year's Cotton Bowl, they proved their mettle to the world.

This year's version, now tested and found as solid as blue twisted steel, boasts such dandies as rover Bill Krug, defensive end Lawrence Craft and linebacker Ben Zambiasi.

Krug, a Washington D.C. transplant, was a first-team Sophomore All-America last year and has started for two years while Craft, teaming excellently with ex-quarterback Dicky Clark on the other side of the line, was twice the 'Most Outstanding Player' on TV. Zambiasi is just plain mean.

Ronnie Swoopes, quick, strong, and tough, is a good one at tackle, but the best may be hidden in the pack as Sylvester Boler, the Bulldogs' awesome middle guard, is back.

KENTUCKY

Wildcat football fortunes in recent years have been the same hue as the famed bluegrass, but things could change if everyone stays healthy.

The best athlete on the club, and the smartest, is linebacker Jim Kovach, a respected hard-hitter from Ohio.

But the biggest in the Kentucky stable has to be defensive end Art Still, a towering 6'-7", 230-pounder who missed spring drills due to foot problems.

Larry King of Syracuse has been outstanding in leading the Orangemen defense.

Sometimes it is difficult to place a player. Nolan Cromwell, Kansas, was a safety in his first two seasons, but now is a cornerback. His Bowl performance brought rave reviews and, when drafted, will be considered pre-trained as the pros shift him back to safety. Cromwell is also an academic All-America, a 4.5 speedster, and in high school was a basketball and track all-state. Those credentials and a dozen interceptions will surely bring out the All-America vote.

Larry King from Penn State is a dream come true for any team. A defensive back with all the determination and credentials it takes to be a star, Larry, for sure, will be in demand at the end of the season.

Notre Dame's Luther Bradley is another superb back to watch. His pass coverage is outstanding due to his great lateral speed and cat-quick reactions.

Martin Mitchell of Tulane plays corner and free safety in All America style. Stan Black of Mississippi State was a starter for three years, but when needed as a strong safety, was switched from wide receiver. And at free safety, USC offers Clint Strozzer, a kid with the smarts who is especially effective reading the run or pass, and coming up to support on the run. One not to be overlooked is Lester Hayes, Texas A & M, an outside linebacker who was shifted to strong safety, and with his build, 6'1" and 205 lbs., could be in one place or another as needed.

If one lists the punter on the defensive team, we can make note that the battle for the lead statistic will be between Washington State's Gavin Hedrick and Tom Skaldany of Ohio State.

And there you have the early line on college All America, defense 1976. Problem, name only eleven.

Frankly...The most original soft drink ever.

Cat-quick Jerry Blanton, a tackle for two solid years before finding himself at noseguard this spring, is a 6'-2", 220-pound workhorse while defensive back Mike Siganos is the speed merchant in the secondary. He'll be complimented by Ray Carr back there while Jamey Ramey, a 6'-4", 225-pound sophomore, starts for his second straight year under Fran Curci.

LOUISIANA STATE (LSU)

When he turned 18, A. J. Duhe had already started in eight collegiate football games. Now a 6'-4", 249-pound defensive standout, A.J. is perhaps the quickest down lineman in college football today.

But giving him a race for quickness is a Longview, Texas, defensive end named Lew Sibley that "tattoo'ed" enemy runners a whopping 72 times last fall, including seven times behind the line of scrimmage.

Clinton Burrell, a tough-hand at cornerback, is a junior starting for the third year in the experience-filled world of the Bayou Tiger and he provided the speed for coach 'Cholly Mac' McClendon.

Coach McClendon has seven lettered linebackers who are returning and several defensive backs.

MISSISSIPPI

With premier defensive lineman "Gentle Ben" Williams now gone from the school of Rebel flags, muddled conversation and beautiful women, there are two that feel their time has drawn nigh.

Gary Turner, a 6'-4", 218-pound defensive end, is already a familiar name on pre-season All-America squads while Pete Robertson, a tackle who plays on the other side of the line, will make the Ole Miss front line a solid one.

Robertson, a sturdy 6'-0", 257-pounder, could well see duty at middle guard under the Rebs' rejuvenated defensive attack and another to watch will be quarterback-transfer George Plasketes at the end opposite Turner if his knee operation holds true.

Lawrence Johnson is a two-year veteran at defensive tackle while George Stuart heads the linebacker squad with two years of experience.

MISSISSIPPI STATE

"If there is a better middle guard in the country than Harvey Hull, I want to at least shake his hand," says head coach Bob Tyler, and it is plain to see

Three-year letterman Darrell Carpenter will star at tackle for the Gators.

Tyler isn't fixing to "press any flesh."

Hull, a three-year-letterman for the Bulldogs, is a 6'-2", 230-pounder from Walnut Grove, Miss., and was State's leading tackler last year with 147 stops.

Helping him will be pre-season All-American Stan Black, a safety who played flanker for the Bulldogs as a sophomore before finding a natural position in the secondary, where he plucked three enemy passes out of the sky.

Next to Hull "in front" will be 6'-5", 250-pound tackle Larry Gillard, a mere junior some scouts are already calling the No. 1 draft pick in 1978.

Senior Ray Costict and junior Jerald Porter are capable linebackers while Bill Lee and Mike Lawrence will help matters in the backfield.

TENNESSEE

Tennessee, a haven for top linebackers, appears to have another crop growing on its 'Big Orange' tree as Andy Spiva, Russ Williams and Craig Puki give Bill Battle a top-notch threesome.

Spiva is in his third year and is being touted for All-American honors while Williams, lightning-quick, complements UT's rugged defensive game. Puki is a new-comer, but promising.

Mike Mauck heads the secondary and is a two-year starter, in which time he has probably participated in more tackles than any other UT defensive back.

Jim Woofter anchors the line and, at 6'-2", 236, makes up for size with quickness and technique.

One workhorse of the Kentucky defense in noseguard Jerry Blanton.

Gary Hardeman, only a sophomore, should figure into the UT secondary plan and also keep an eye on Thomas Rowsey, David Parsons and punt return specialist Stanley Morgan.

VANDERBILT

One look at Dennis Harrison and you know he has been growing for a long time.

But Vanderbilt football followers say Harrison grew up the fastest in Atlanta one rain-swept December day when he alone, a mere freshman, stopped Texas Tech from scoring in the Peach Bowl with three straight tackles from the one.

Harrison, 6'-6", 260, looks like an oak tree in the midst of the Commodore defensive line and, thus far, no one has been able to contain him save a badly-sprained ankle.

Kimmie Weaver, a head-hunting linebacker from nearby Clinton, can bench-press over 300 and was the team's second-leading tackler last season as a sophomore.

But minus Harrison and Weaver, the defensive side of Vandy's football team is inexperienced. Mitch Lilly shows signs at tackle while Bill Blair and David Hale will try to anchor middle guard.

Vanderbilt, however, did beat arch-rival Tennessee last year and Fred Pancoast hopes his younger players will ride the crest of that wave for a long time . . . long enough to see Vandy do it once or twice or . . .

Insta-Focus® — the only binoculars that keep fast moving action in focus.

FINGERTIP INSTANT FOCUSING

Try using ordinary binoculars to follow the Quarterback fading back for a pass and then switching to a wide receiver sprinting into the end zone. Can't be done. Because no matter how good your binoculars are, you miss a lot of the action if you can't change focus fast enough.

Bushnell's unique Insta-Focus ends this problem forever. With Insta-Focus you can change focus as often as you want — instantly. Bushnell binoculars with Insta-Focus are the only binoculars made specifically for the fan of fast moving sports action. Racing, hunting, bird watching, anything. See them for yourself in better camera and sporting goods stores everywhere.

TO BE PERFECTLY HONEST WITH YOU...

... we want to be perfectly honest with you ... about the Uniroyal tires that you buy from us.

We know you want to get the right price
...but more importantly, we want you to get the right tire. And selecting the right tire depends on things like your driving requirements, how many miles you drive and how long you plan to keep your car.

There are 7 different types of Uniroyals, from Double Steel Belted Radials to 4-ply Polyester Cords. We think we can help you select the right tire for your particular needs ... but not necessarily the most expensive one.

The choice, of course, is ultimately yours. But we believe that if we can be perfectly honest with you once, we'll have the opportunity to be perfectly honest with you again.

They Call

Known around the Southeast football circuit as "Death Valley", the magnificent edifice named Tiger Stadium comes alive Saturday nights in the autumn of every year.

The unique structure, which lies only a few blocks from the Mississippi River, can adequately seat some 67,720 avid gridiron loyalists although some 71,239 crammed into the 52-year old stadium for the 1973 Colorado game.

Currently, Tiger Stadium is undergoing its fourth facelifting as construction engineers are adding an upperdeck to the West side of the park which will seat an additional 8,000 fans.

Originally, the football arena seated 12,000 fans when the stadium was christened back in 1924. Four years later, in 1928, the sides on both the East and West were extended upward to accommodate 10,000 more fans. In 1936, the stadium capacity was increased to 46,000 with the completion of 24,000 seats in the North end.

The horseshoe shape that Tiger Stadium had taken on with the '36 expansion vanished in 1953 as the South end zone was enclosed upping the capacity to the present mark of 67,720.

Besides serving as host to those football fans lucky enough to purchase a prized Tiger ducat on game nights, Tiger Stadium also serves as a male dormitory for some 1,500 students. The offices for both the athletic director and football coaches are located in the North side of the park as is the LSU Athletic Hall-of-Fame.

QUALITY IN EVERY DETAIL

Call your own time-out.

Some of the best moments in any sport take place right where you're sitting. Because where you're sitting can be a great place to cool the action.

Just grab a hold of a sizzling hot dog, spread the mustard thick, and drown your thirst with an ice-cold Pepsi. Nothing makes food taste better and good times last longer than Pepsi-Cola. And Pepsi is just as close to where you're sitting as the refreshment stand.

Go ahead. Right now is a great time to call your own time-out...and call for plenty of great-tasting Pepsi-Cola.

It's going to be a whole new ballgame at Audubon Ford this spring.

We're moving!

We'll be calling the signals from our beautiful new building on the corner of Sherwood Forest Blvd. and Airline Highway. The game plan calls for an expanded service area and the largest covered display showcase in Baton Rouge.

Watch for our kickoff this spring. It's going to be a whole new ballgame.

Once again, TV service technicians give these opinions about Zenith:

I. Best Picture.

Again this year, in a nationwide survey of the opinions of independent TV service technicians, Zenith was selected, more than any other brand, as the color TV with the best picture.

Question: In general, of all the color TV brands you are familiar with, which one would you say has the best overall picture?

Answers:

Zenith	34%
Brand A	21%
Brand B	12%
Brand C	8%
Brand D	7%
Brand E	4%
Brand F	2%
Brand G	2%
Brand H	2%
Other Brands	2%
About Equal	10%
Don't Know	4%

Note: Answers total over 100% due to multiple responses.

II. Fewest Repairs.

In the same opinion survey, the service technicians selected Zenith as the color TV needing the fewest repairs.

Question: In general, of all the color TV brands you are familiar with, which one would you say requires the fewest repairs?

Answers:

Zenith	38%
Brand A	18%
Brand D	9%
Brand B	6%
Brand C	5%
Brand E	3%
Brand F	2%
Brand G	2%
Brand H	2%
Other Brands	2%
About Equal	11%
Don't Know	10%

We're proud of our record of building dependable quality products.
